'A Broken Heart' on her sleeve

Acclaimed rock biographer Stephen Davis releases a controversial new work today titled, "More Room in a Broken Heart: The True Adventures of Carly Simon." Davis, who is based in Milton, digs up some surprising items, including that the iconic singer had an affair with actor Jeremy Irons, got pregnant and had an abortion. {page 09}

Kin face alleged killer after daughter's funeral

- Chelsea man, 59, pleads not guilty to stabbing woman in heart
- 20-year-old woman's funeral held hours before arraignment
- Authorities say the two had 'ongoing relationship,' but few details

Hours after they attended the funeral of their 20-year-old daughter, the parents of Jessica Cormier went to court to face her accused killer.

Clarence Earl Berry, 59, was arraigned on a first-degree murder charge at Malden District Court yesterday. He pleaded not guilty and Judge Dominic Paratore ordered him held without bail.

A funeral service for Cormier, 20, was held at the Smith Funeral Home in Chelsea yesterday afternoon. Berry's hearing was held about two hours later.

On Jan. 3, Cormier was found stabbed twice in the foyer of her Everett home by her mother who heard screaming and came down to see what happened, according to authorities and the Globe. One of the stab wounds pierced Cormier's heart.

Berry is a formerly homeless man who is now staying at an apartment as part of transitional program, according to the Globe.

"This is a horrific and senseless case in which we allege that the defendant fatally stabbed the young victim numerous times, causing her death."

MIDDLESEX DISTRICT ATTORNEY GERRY LEONE

Authorities searched Berry's apartment and seized evidence that later tested positive for human blood, according to authorities.

He was arrested Friday afternoon.

Prosecutors claim Berry and Cormier had an ongoing relationship but did not say specifically how they knew each other.

Berry is due back in court next month.

- Beyonce's baby has same name as Boston business
- Owner flooded with phone calls after name revealed

Ever since Beyonce — yes, that Beyonce — coincidentally named her new baby daughter after a Boston-based party-planning company, Blue Ivy, owner Veronica Alexandra has been "inundated with calls."

"It's out of control," Alexandra said, switching back and forth between calls during an interview with Metro. "That was CNN that just called."

Alexandra, 31, reached out to TMZ.com when news broke about Beyonce and Jay-Z's obscure name choice for their bundle of joy, according to the Globe. She said she would love to be part of the party-planning process for any future baby celebrations.

"I'm pretty positive this is going to be huge," said Alexandra. "If you're going to name your baby the same as [an event-planning] company, wouldn't you want them to throw your party? I'm going to offer."

Alexandra said the strange coincidence that has led to numerous calls, e-mails and business inquiries will set her back a day at work, but the free advertising will be worth it.

"It's obviously going to spike people's interest, and we are going to enjoy the scenario," she said.

Lawmakers eye cellphone ban for Bay State

Hearing today on ban of handheld phone use for drivers National board urging countrywide ban

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

▶ If the National Transportation Safety Board has its way, you'll have to hang it up, lady!

State lawmakers today will consider a hands-free requirement for cellphone use in the car, following the lead of neighboring states New York and Connecticut.

In 2010, lawmakers passed a law banning all texting while driving and all cellphone use by drivers 18 years old or younger.

The Legislature's Joint Committee on Transportation will consider the hands-free mandate during a hearing at the State House this morning.

This hearing follows a recent call from the National Transportation Safety Board that all 50 states ban the use of cellphones while driving. In 2009, 5,474 people were killed and an estimated 448,000 were injured in crashes involving driver distraction, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Police agencies have said that the lack of a cellphone ban makes it difficult to enforce the texting-while-driving law because drivers are still allowed to use their phones while behind the wheel.

Some local safe driving advocacy groups are supporting the hands-free mandate calling it a further step to reduce distracted driving.

"We are fully in support of a hands-free requirement in Massachusetts primarily because it provides police the ability to enforce the texting ban," said Jeff Larson, from the Safe Roads Alliance. "It also takes the phone out of peoples' hands so people will be less likely to text or do something else they shouldn't be doing."

The committee will also consider a ban on all cellphone use in school zones.

CHRISTINA WALLACE

GOV. DEVAL PATRICK, ON WTKK LAST MONTH, WAS ASKED ABOUT A TOTAL CELLPHONE BAN. HOWEVER, HE ADDED THAT HE MIGHT BE OPEN TO MOVING TOWARD A HANDS-FREE LAW.

By the numbers

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration compiled data of crashes and their causes: of fatal crashes in 2009 involved reports of distracted driving.

20%
of injury crashes in 2009 involved reports of distracted driving.

Romney rivals' time running out

Lee Bandy knows more about politics in South Carolina than just about anybody. For 40 years, Bandy has been among the best political prophets in a state whose primary has correctly picked every Republican candidate for U.S. President since 1980.

Right now Bandy, a veteran columnist with The State newspaper in Columbia, is betting on Mitt Romney to win the South Carolina primary.

No Republican candidate has ever followed a win at the Iowa caucus, which Romney secured narrowly last week, with victory in the New Hampshire primary, and virtually everyone but his opponents expects that he will do just that on Tuesday night.

"A lot of Republicans down here don't like Romney." BANDY

"A lot of Republicans down here don't like Romney," Bandy said. He was referring especially to the two-thirds of Republican primary voters in the Palmetto State who are evangelical Christians. They are leery not only of Romney's Mormon faith but also of his earlier positions on abortion and gay marriage. REUTERS

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Michaels on leaving 'The Doctors'

Jillian Michaels, the trainer we would least like to cross paths with in a dark alley, made a splash when she joined the hit syndicated show "The Doctors" this year as a co-host. But last week, after only half the season, she left the show. The split, she told Metro, had to do with cankles.

"It was like the relationship that looks perfect on paper — and when you got there it just was all wrong," she told us over the phone. "They wanted me to do segments on cankles, and I wanted to segments on food deserts. I wanted to do exposés on how prisoners have better food than our children at public schools. It wasn't anybody's fault, it really wasn't. There's no hard feelings." Michaels said she called one of the producers she was close to in order to end things.

"I said, 'Listen, I know that this isn't working for you guys, because you know I'm not happy and I don't feel happy doing it, and my fans don't like me doing it and your fans don't like me doing what I wanna do. And, you know, let's just walk away amicably.'"

Food deserts? Public school cafeteria exposés? What is she doing? Trying to reposition herself as a new Lisa Ling — but with biceps?

—With additional reporting by Meredith Engel

PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Aguilera

Christina Aguilera has received a lot of criticism and scrutiny for her weight over the past year, but she insists it's nothing she can't handle. "I've been on all spectrums," she says, according to Us Weekly. "You can never be too perfect, too thin, too curvy, voluptuous." As for Aguilera herself, she says she knows what's really important: "As long as I'm happy in my own skin, that's all I need," she says. "I'm happy with where I'm at. I have a boyfriend that loves my body. I love my body. My son is healthy and happy. That's all that matters."

Look, I'm all for healthy body image and lord knows we need more curvy superstars — but judging from this picture, it does seem like someone need to tip off Aguilera that one more thing that should matter to her is a good bra.

First name Blue, middle name Ivy

Solange Knowles has taken to Twitter to officially declare Blue Ivy Carter, the newborn daughter of sister Beyonce Knowles and Jay-Z, "the most beautiful girl in the world." Of course, she may be a bit biased. A mother herself, Solange is excited about being an aunt. "I don't need any advice," she previously told Us Weekly. "Because [Beyonce] has been a phenomenal aunt to my son, so she's set the tone as an aunt. I've set the tone as a mom, so we're learning from each other."

For Depp: Paradis lost?

It may be trouble in paradise for Johnny Depp, as the relationship between the "Pirates of the Caribbean" star and Vanessa Paradis is reportedly on the rocks, according to Radar Online. "Johnny isn't handling anything well right now," a source says. "People around him are worried about how Johnny is doing because he and Vanessa seem so fractured right now. Their relationship is heading toward the end."

Paradis

Perry keeps it private

When it comes to her separation from Russell Brand, Katy Perry doesn't want others speaking for her. "Concerning the gossip, I want to be clear that no one speaks for me. Not a blog, magazine, 'close sources' or my family," she posted on Twitter. She also took the opportunity to thank her fans for supporting her, writing, "I am so grateful for all the love and support I've had from people around the world. You guys have made my heart happy again."

Music writer Stephen Davis finds there is 'More Room in a Broken Heart' with his new Carly Simon biography

The woman who pioneered confessional songwriting seems to think the book is too revealing

When Stephen Davis gave Carly Simon a first look at his new book, "More Room in a Broken Heart: The True Adventures of Carly Simon," he enclosed a note.

"I sent her the galleys, you know, the uncorrected proofs, and I said, 'Carly, if you like this book, I haven't done my job,'" Davis reveals.

The veteran music writer was right.

"I've talked to members of her family, and they say that she is upset with the book. And it's not a good idea to get Carly Simon upset at you," says Davis. "On the other hand, it would have been an even worse idea to write a boring book about Carly Simon."

"More Room" is a far from boring account of the life of the iconic singer and her five-decade career, which is rife with huge hurdles of neuroses and great leaps in songwriting. It features bizarre cameos by the most important personalities of her time. A sampling from her youth: Pete Seeger was her kindergarten music teacher; Jackie Robinson played second base in family softball games; George Gershwin came over to hear how "Summertime" would sound with her mom singing; MLK and Einstein visited for lunch. Later in the book, Marvin Gaye comes on to her, Jeremy Irons has a controversial cameo (see below for more on that) and she gets Mick Jagger to sing on her biggest hit. A "did they?/didn't they?" theme recurs throughout the book. She also enjoys romances with Cat Stevens, Kris Kristofferson, Warren Beatty, lots of drummers and, most notably, she endures a decade-long marriage to James Taylor that saw fire and rain.

"I think she feels that the book is too revealing," says Davis, who usually drops at least one big bombshell with every musical biography he has written, including previous subjects Led Zeppelin, Michael Jackson and Aerosmith. And Simon has been publicly making her displeasure with the book known through various outlets — but the way Davis sees it, if she's providing free advertising, nobody does it better.

"If she would just be quiet," he muses, "you know, you can't buy the publicity that she's giving this book."

Irons in the fire

One of the guaranteed controversies of "More Room" occurs on page 320. Davis discloses that in 1984, actor Jeremy Irons cheated on his wife with Carly Simon and got the singer pregnant. She underwent an abortion, which she said was "still a terrible source of pain and guilt."

"No one ever put that together before because it was very quiet and it was very secret, but she told me about that," says Davis. "And I asked her about that in July and I said, 'Look, I'm going to publish this.' ... We had been talking about Jeremy Irons and I said, 'What about him getting you pregnant?' There was this terrible silence. And then she goes, 'How did you know that?' And I said, 'Well, you told me five years ago when I was doing the "Reflections" liner notes.' She then said, 'Well, I won't deny it.'"

Get kids to eat their veggies

Your child may munch more vegetables at meals if he can choose the ones he wants, suggests a new study from Spain. When kids ages 4 to 6 were given a choice of green beans or zucchini at lunch, they ate twice as many veggies as those who didn't get to pick. Feeling a sense of control over what's on their plate probably motivated them to eat more, say researchers.

Try this at home
Create a veggie bar of cherry tomatoes, broccoli florets, sliced mushrooms and pepper rings for topping pasta or mini pizzas. Or fill a party platter with different colorful veggies and circulate it before dinner as an appetizer, then park it on the table where everyone can reach and grab. SALLY KUZEMCHAK FOR PARENTS

Kids like colorful meals; adults, not so much

Study subjects: 23 preteen children and 46 adults
Location of study: U.S.
Results: According to a Cornell University study, plates with seven different foods and six different colors are especially appealing to children, while adults find fewer items and colors on their plates appealing (three foods and three colors). Kids also liked when their entrees were placed in the front part of the plate in a fun design.
Significance: Children don't like boring meals! An easy remedy for picky eaters: Get creative.

Twin births increasing

Location of study: U.S.
Results: A new report from the CDC claims that there are more twins being born in the United States than ever before. The study found that in 2009, one out of every 30 U.S.-born babies was a twin, compared with one out of every 53 babies in 1980.
Significance: The increase is likely due to more older women having children, and the burgeoning use of fertility drugs.

Gestational diabetes and ADHD

Study subjects: 212 preschool children
Location of study: U.S.
Results: An ongoing study at Queens College at the City University of New York found that children whose mothers had gestational diabetes mellitus (GDM) had a two-fold risk of ADHD diagnosis at age 6. The study also found that GDM was greater among low socioeconomic status (SES) families than among higher SES families.
Significance: Children exposed to both GDM and low SES had lower cognitive development than those not exposed. LINDA CLARKE

Who to blame for our woes?

RE: "YOUR TIME IS OVER, OBAMA": Messrs Dixon and Holbrook, you have both proven my worst fears to be true: the Republicans' lack of responsibility and their shortsightedness. Your president, G. W. Bush, drove this country into the ground. Instead of admitting to their complicity in this act and trying to help this country come out of this mess, Republicans continue to do everything they can to make sure that President Obama fails. This is treason, as President Obama's failure is also this country's failure.
BARBARA MILUSKI, VIA E-MAIL

If a person can't tell the appreciable difference between managing a sports team or company and a country with a population of 307 million with a $14.5 trillion GNP, I think he should take a class on common sense. It will take more than three years to rectify our economy.
SARA PAIGE, VIA E-MAIL

Yes, Alan Holbrook, all aspects of the NFL translate directly to all aspects of life, including running a country. As for Obama doing nothing to improve U.S. jobs, the Institute of Supply Management said last Tuesday that U.S. manufacturing activity made gains in December. Manufacturing is the toughest team to beat, and results in the greatest gain in stats. Wouldn't that be called a winning streak? Wouldn't you say of that team, "We're goin' to the Super Bowl baby!" Perhaps you should punt — oh, wait, with the current Republican lineup — y'all already did.
SCOTT KEELEY, VIA E-MAIL

Perhaps Mr. Dixon could lend the president his magic wand that he might instantaneously correct nearly 40 years of misdirected economic and fiscal policy. Until then, he'll just have to be patient with the rest of us.
JOSEPH CONNELL, VIA E-MAIL

Economists blindsided

RE: "BOTH SIDES HAVE OVERFED THE FED": The "respected economists" which letter-writer Harry Thorn talks about are those same economists who were blindsided by the housing bubble. Austrian Business Cycle Theory not only predicts but explains the boom-bust cycle. Ludwig von Mises predicted and warned of the America's stock market crash and subsequent Great Depression. Sadly, his warnings fell on deaf ears. KELLY DONNOE, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. If you lack the skill or knowledge to call the shots, let someone who seems to know what he or she is talking about guide you through the maze that you're facing.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Being open-handed is one of your greatest assets. Once others see that you're not trying to put anything over on them, they'll treat you with fairness and consideration.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Chances are you're in a favorable trend right now where your work or career is concerned. Capitalize on it by performing the best that you can, and your efforts will be acknowledged.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Unless you monitor your behavior, you could come off as either haughty or overly submissive. In either case, it won't help your image with others.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Do not start something that you know you won't or can't finish. The only thing that's likely to give you a sense of satisfaction is seeing something through to the end.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Have some appreciation for your unique ideas and then have the courage to try to bring them to fruition. If you effectively do what you conceive, everything else will fall into place.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. One of your more admirable qualities is your desire to cherish, protect and even spoil those you love. Your generosity toward others provides much joy for them and pleasure for you.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Assignments that might be tough for others will be a piece of cake for you, mostly because you'll see them as a means to express your abilities and love.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Call the shots from behind the scenes and be more effective. You'll achieve great satisfaction seeing others as conduits of your expression.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Your group dealings will bring far more satisfaction than will arrangements with people on an individual basis.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Just because everyone won't be in total accord over something that you want to achieve, don't lose faith in it before you even try. You're the one who knows what it's all about.

Emmanuel College's Graduate Programs in Biopharmaceutical Leadership Prepares Scientists for Industry Management

EMMANUEL COLLEGE

Scientists working in the biopharmaceutical industry require leadership and management skills that are often not part of their academic preparation. Through a rigorous curriculum, created based on focus groups of biopharmaceutical industry scientists and management experts, Emmanuel College's Graduate Certificate in Biopharmaceutical Leadership and Master of Science in Management with specialization in Biopharmaceutical Leadership respond to the unique needs of these scientists by providing opportunities to earn an academic, graduate-level credential in management skills for scientists. Below, Adjunct Faculty Member Dr. Nancy Kohl, a retired Merck scientist who now leads research projects at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, discusses Emmanuel College's Graduate Programs in Biopharmaceutical Leadership.

How do Emmanuel College's Graduate Programs in Biopharmaceutical Leadership add value to the field?

"The biopharmaceutical leadership programs provide leadership and management skills to complement scientists' technical skills. Most scientists are trained in an academic environment and graduate with excellent technical skills and research experience. Those choosing to work in the industry also require leadership and management skills. Emmanuel College's Graduate Programs in Biopharmaceutical Leadership seek to fill that gap. The six-course graduate certificate is a one-year, part-time academic opportunity that addresses critical knowledge skills in leadership, management and business in the biopharmaceutical industry. For those choosing to earn the Master of Science in Management with specialization in Biopharmaceutical Leadership, students begin the five general management courses after completing six biopharmaceutical leadership cohort courses."

How does the biopharmaceutical leadership curriculum allow students to apply concepts practically?

"All of the courses in the program make use of relevant case studies taken from the biopharmaceutical environment. This teaching process makes it easy for students to immediately apply what they learn on the job and develop skills that will advance their careers."

How are the biopharmaceutical leadership course requirements appropriate and relevant to students?

"The first three courses in the program focus on leadership and management. The program begins by looking at individuals as leaders and progresses to examining the scientist as a team leader, supplying tools and processes for project and team management. Courses in the second half of the program build on the leadership and management content addressed in the first half and also address business topics unique to the industry, such as aligning business and science, the regulatory approval process and research in today's global environment."

Where and how often do classes take place?

"Each course is conducted in a 7-week accelerated format. The degree and certificate are available at Emmanuel's main campus in Boston by attending class one night each week, or they can be completed online in an asynchronous format."

What biopharmaceutical leadership networking opportunities are available for students?

"Emmanuel's central location, in the heart of the Longwood Medical and Academic Area and adjacent to some of the most respected health care institutions and research centers in the world, allows the college to form strategic partnerships with leaders in the biopharmaceutical industry. Students come from a variety of Boston-area pharmaceutical and biotechnology institutions, so students have the opportunity to network with fellow students from other companies. In addition, most of the program's expert instructors have extensive experience at world-renowned biopharmaceutical institutions such as Merck, Novartis, Vertex Pharmaceuticals and AstraZeneca."

For more information on Emmanuel's Graduate Programs in Biopharmaceutical Leadership, attend an online informational webinar on Wednesday, January 18th at 1:00 p.m. Visit gpp.emmanuel.edu and "Schedule a Visit" to RSVP and receive more details.

Suffolk Grads Build Skills for Specialized Careers in Criminal Justice

SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY
COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES

When crime strikes in Lawrence, Mass., Kate Curtis knows it and takes action.

Curtis is a crime analyst with the Lawrence Police Department. She looks for patterns of crime in the city and shares her findings with police officers, who work to counter the trends she identifies.

A graduate of Suffolk University's Master of Science in Crime and Justice Studies program, Curtis values the practical training she received at Suffolk. "Based on what I learned in the classroom and during my internship with the Burlington Police Department, I had the skills I needed to land my dream job and make a difference in the community," she says.

Suffolk's innovative crime and justice studies program prepares students to be not only practitioners in criminal justice, but also critical thinkers and agents of change in the communities they serve. For instance, students learn how and when to utilize community resources and treatment programs as alternatives to the court system, incarceration, and traditional policing models.

Building on a solid foundation in law, criminology, and applied research, students may pursue more focused interests in criminal justice via optional concentrations in Victim Advocacy and in Youth, Crime and Justice.

Real-world insight and hands-on experience are key elements of Suffolk's program. Seasoned criminal justice practitioners lead many courses, lacing their lessons with examples from their own careers. In addition, students gain meaningful work-related experiences in the program's internship and practicum placements.

Criminal justice graduate students also benefit from work with Suffolk's renowned research centers. "The Center for Restorative Justice," program director Donald Morton notes, "links academia to the real world in terms of offenders, crime victims, and members of the community coming together to mediate conflicts." Graduate students may also gain experience at the Center for Crime and Justice Policy Research, where scholars share extensive expertise in the art and science of conducting basic and applied research.

Like Kate Curtis, many Suffolk graduates are excelling in specialized areas of criminal justice. Michelle Pherson completed the joint degree program leading to both the MS in Crime and Justice Studies and MS in Mental Health Counseling. She now works with the Department of Justice, Federal Bureau of Prisons, as a sex offender treatment specialist. Dual-degree programs are also available in public administration and in law.

Amanda Breen, a 2010 graduate, is a violence intervention advocate at Massachusetts General Hospital. She provides crisis intervention and support for youths who arrive at the emergency room due to assaults, stabbings, or gunshot wounds.

Michael Martinek works as a community corrections specialist in the observation and analysis of drug and alcohol testing and results, collection of DNA and fingerprints, and database administration.

Another Suffolk graduate, Don Aviv is chief operating officer of Interfor Inc., an international intelligence and security consulting firm that conducts investigations for clients around the globe.

Classes are held at Suffolk's downtown Boston campus in the late afternoon and early evening, making the program ideal for working professionals looking to enter or advance in the field. With both full- and part-time options, Suffolk's crime and justice studies program opens the door to rewarding careers that benefit communities.

Take the Next Step Toward a Rewarding Career

In today's challenging job market, it is important to develop the skills and confidence that you will need as you pursue a new career or an advanced position in your current field. Commitment to putting people first continues to make Lesley University a top choice for those seeking to become leaders in education, the arts, counseling, expressive therapies, or intercultural relations.

Lesley University offers more than 70 graduate and adult Bachelor's degree programs designed to empower graduates to enact positive change—in both their professional careers and the world around them. Lesley's experiential programs meet the flexible scheduling needs of adult learners, with classes on-, and off-campus, online, and on the weekends.

Graduate Degrees: Arts and Social Sciences

The Graduate School of Arts and Social Sciences offers unique graduate programs in Community Arts, Counseling and Psychology, Creative Writing, Ecological Teaching and Learning, Expressive Therapies, Intercultural Relations, Photography, and Visual Arts. Our advanced degree programs emphasize experiential learning and close collaboration between you and the people who are making an impact in your field of interest.

If traditional degree programs do not accommodate your particular interests, the Self-Designed Master's Degree Program will enable you to design your own degree based on cross-disciplinary interests. Students who choose to self-design a degree may now choose to specialize in Mindfulness Studies, taking courses to understand both the basic principles of mindfulness and its effective application in the field.

Graduate Degrees: Education

Lesley's School of Education is marked by its commitment to education reform, action research, and a philosophy of providing lifelong learning for educators. Our graduate programs enable students to juggle the demands of career and family through on-campus courses in Cambridge and off-campus courses delivered at more than 35 sites in Massachusetts through a one-weekend-per-month format. Several Master's programs are offered entirely online, including Science in Education, Technology in Education, and Mathematics Education (K-8).

Bachelor's Degrees for Adult Learners

Lesley's Center for the Adult Learner offers Bachelor's degree programs for adults in need of flexible learning options. The Center was created to support students, many of whom are juggling work and family responsibilities, as they work to achieve their professional goals. Students benefit from degree planning assistance, personalized attention through meetings with an academic advisor, and access to Lesley's high-quality course offerings. Credit for prior learning can be awarded for on-the-job training and previous work experience.

Cambridge College Gets High Marks from Adult Students

Cambridge College

Cambridge College will be nationally known for providing quality, innovative and relevant higher education opportunities through a student-centered and participatory learning model that empowers our students, enriches our community and transforms the future.

Cambridge College
Vision Statement

Between March 15th and May 16th, 2011, all degree-seeking, undergraduate-level Cambridge College students were invited to participate in an Adult Learner Inventory Survey developed jointly by Noel-Levitz and the Council for Adult and Experiential Learning (CAEL). This national survey was created to measure the unique needs of adult undergraduate students. It identifies the importance students place on various aspects of campus life, and measures their satisfaction levels. Among the items that Cambridge College students thought were important (and were most satisfied with) were:

- "The faculty in my program are experts and scholars in their field."
- "My program allows me to pace my studies to fit my life and work schedules."
- "The learning experiences within my program of study challenge me to r each beyond what I know already."
- "My studies are closely related to my life and work goals."
- "My instructors respect student opinions and ideas that differ from their own."
- "Most instructors use a variety of teaching methods."
- "This institution has a diverse student body."
- "I have a clear understand ing of what I'm expected to learn in my classes."
- "I am encouraged to apply the classes I've taken to ward a degree or certificate."
- "I am able to obtain information I need by phone, fax, email, or online."
- "Processes and procedures for enrolling here are convenient."

Cambridge College is nationally recognized for breaking down barriers in access to quality education. Students who have overcome great challenges have always been central to the College's mission and enjoy a great deal of mentor support. Additionally, the College has been recognized for serving the African-American and Latino communities in New England, and is committed to providing one of the lowest tuition rates among private universities and independent colleges in Massachusetts.

Cambridge College offers bachelor's degree (B.A. and B.S.) programs; master's degree (M.Ed and M.M.) programs in education, psychology, counseling, and management; and a doctor of education (Ed.D.) program in educational leadership, as well as certificates of advanced graduate studies (C.A.G.S.). Students may transfer up to 90 credits from regionally accredited institutions into undergraduate degree completion programs and 9 or more credits into a master's degree, depending on the program.

Discover Cambridge College for yourself at an information session and FREE financial literacy workshop (presented by Eastern Bank) on Thursday, January 26th. The workshop will be held from 5:00 - 6:00 p.m. and will be followed by an all-programs information session at the main campus, 1000 Massachusetts Avenue, Cambridge, between Central Square and Harvard Square on the Red Line. For those further north, the Merrimack Valley campus at 60 Island Street in Lawrence will hold an information session on TUESDAY, February 7th: drop in anytime between 4:00 and 7:00 p.m.

TUFTS' MPH PROGRAM OFFERS A DEGREE YOU CAN PUT TO WORK

Tufts UNIVERSITY

Melanie Gaiser (MPH '07) was considering medical school when she happened upon Tufts University School of Medicine's Masters in Public Health (MPH) program—a program that has led her on a fascinating path. Gaiser plans to pursue a career in qualitative research and patient-provider communication after she completes her PhD in health policy. "Tufts fueled a new passion for me. I am now blending my previous career (as a journalist) with my desire to help patients."

Grounded in the practical applications of public health, Tufts' MPH program is designed for college graduates interested in public health as well as mid-career professionals working in public policy, medicine, law, communications, and other fields. In concentrations ranging from nutrition to global health, the program offers students a solid foundation in public health principles; the Applied Learning Experience, a self-designed field study requirement, provides challenging forays into real work environments.

Small classes and professors' close ties to the medical and public health communities are also key. "One great benefit of being in a medical school is the varied connections faculty have," Gaiser says. "If you need an introduction to someone in a powerful position in public health, your professors will introduce you. If you want to do hospital administration or clinical research, chances are those contacts are right there in the room next to yours. These connections enrich the learning experience and provide many opportunities after graduation."

The program also nourishes social justice—which, according to Program Director Anthony Schlaff, MD, MPH, is what public health is all about. At Tufts, students learn critical thinking, writing, and speaking skills that teach them to effect change. "These are the skills employers look for in students—the ability to solve problems in systems, both at the agency and community levels," Schlaff says.

For Gaiser, Tufts fostered her passion to help others. "The professors' excitement around social justice can't help but translate to students. Tufts opened my eyes to the extent and causes of health-related inequalities and gave me tools to help alleviate those problems," she says.

"If you want a school that will nurture your desire for social justice, go to Tufts. If you want a school that will challenge you, go to Tufts. If you want faculty who are well-connected and responsive to your needs, go to Tufts."

When schools say they offer student support, what do they mean?

It could mean a lot of different things. At Bay State College it means we understand that going back to school is a big decision. And, it means we understand your concerns about succeeding at the college level. That's why, regardless of how you see yourself doing in college, we see an opportunity to help you realize your potential with a community of support.

What else does it mean? It means that admissions counselors can show off our campus, answer your questions and guide you through our selection process—even before you apply. It means helping 95 percent of this year's freshman class receive grants or scholarships that don't have to be repaid. It means personal success coordinators and a closely-knit student body that can help make America's biggest college town feel a little more like home.

In the classroom, it means a wide variety of Associates and Bachelor's degree programs in such in-demand fields as healthcare, business, fashion, criminal justice and more. No matter which program you choose, it means learning in small classes from accessible professors with real-world experience in their field. To fit your schedule, it means making classes available at night or online.

As you advance toward your degree, it means having a personal career advancement team. It means helping you write cover letters and resumes, creating mock job interviews and using social media to help you get noticed. It means internships at some of Boston's best companies and organizations to build working relationships with people that can help you find a full-time position doing what you love.

In the end, what does it all mean? It means that at Bay State College, we care as much about your comfort as we do your success. It means we're committed to providing you unmatched student support throughout your college journey. It means that going back to school doesn't mean going it alone.

In short, it means Bay State is the right choice for you.

NORTH BENNET ST. SCHOOL

NORTH BENNET ST. SCHOOL

AN EDUCATION IN CRAFTSMANSHIP

North Bennet Street School, located in Boston, has been teaching professional trades for more than 100 years. The locksmithing and security technology program and the carpentry program are designed to provide the equivalent of a multiple-year apprentice experience in under a year. The intensive, hands-on, nine-month training is a great way to jumpstart a new career or perfect the skills needed to advance quickly in the field.

Todd Gaines, a graduate of the carpentry program says "I'd have to train under a master in the field for 10 years to duplicate what I learned at NBSS in less than a year."

"If you like working with your hands, solving puzzles, working independently and helping people, you have the skills needed to be a locksmith" says Dave Troiano, head of the locksmithing program.

DJ, a graduate of NBSS who runs a successful locksmithing business, says "As a locksmith, no two days are alike. It's a timeless profession that is always in demand."

Both the carpentry and locksmithing programs are accredited by the ACCSC (Accrediting Commission of Career Schools and Colleges) and financial aid is available for qualified students. The programs accept students throughout the year. The next locksmithing program begins in February and the next carpentry program begins in September.

In addition to carpentry and locksmithing, the school offers programs in jewelry making and repair, piano technology, preservation carpentry, violin making and repair, bookbinding and cabinet and furniture making.

MASSACHUSETTS Maritime Academy

You thought about it last year, you'll only be busier next year, NOW is the time to apply!

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN FACILITIES MANAGEMENT

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT

Both programs are designed for the working executive and are offered on alternative Friday evenings and Saturdays.

Classes are held in Waltham, MA
www.maritime.edu/graduate

Graduate Education - The Ultimate Renewable Resource

Massachusetts Maritime Academy's Graduate and Continuing Education Division offers two unique graduate programs: A Master of Science Degree in Facilities Management and a Master of Science Degree in Emergency Management

Both programs are customized for the working executive and are based on a cohort model where students attend class at the Conference Center at Waltham Woods for 31 half-weekends (Friday night and Saturday), every other weekend over 17 months. The program includes a laptop computer, software, textbooks, case packets, breakfast, lunch and dinner, all coffee breaks and Friday night hotel accommodations at the Doubletree Guest Suites in Waltham, Ma.

The mission of the MMA MS programs is to give graduate students the knowledge and skills necessary to become creative problem solvers and in doing so provide current and prospective facility managers and emergency responders with the personal, interpersonal, and group skills necessary to craft and implement creative ideas and thus reduce the gap between good ideas and accepted practices.

The programs forge home the idea that good ideas are not enough (everybody has one) and that implementation is what separates excellence in management and leadership from mediocrity.

If you would like to apply for entrance into next year's program beginning in the Fall 2011 send:
1. A short (300 word max) statement of your professional objectives and how the program will help you meet them.
2. Your resume.
3. Your undergraduate transcript to jmcdonald@maritime.edu

And then fill out the online application at: http://mxapps.maritime.edu/Grad-Application/

Babson Redefines Entrepreneurship – Helping You Define Your Career Goals

BABSON

Are you an entrepreneur? To succeed in today's economy, you have to be. But what exactly is an entrepreneur? What do they know and what do they do? Are you born that way or can you learn to be one?

Babson was the first to understand that "entrepreneur" is not a personality type but a way of thinking and acting to create economic and social value. Today, Babson promotes Entrepreneurial Thought and Action® as the most powerful force for positive change in the world. The Babson MBA Program has been ranked #1 for Entrepreneurship in the nation for 18 consecutive years by U.S. News & World Report. That's because unlike other schools, Babson infuses entrepreneurship education throughout the overall academic pedagogy, rather than teaching it as a siloed subject. Our diverse and accomplished faculty will immerse you in the nuts and bolts, and the rewards and opportunities, of Entrepreneurship of All Kinds®.

Entrepreneurship: The wellspring of innovation

"Babson seeks to continuously redefine the concept of entrepreneurship in the face of changing global economic realities," says Raghu Tadepalli, Ph.D., Murata Dean and Professor of Marketing, F.W. Olin Graduate School of Business at Babson. "We teach our students to have a broader worldview; they quickly understand that there are all kinds of ways to make an impact on people's lives, and entrepreneurship is the wellspring of innovation that makes it all possible."

As one would expect from a school of Babson's reputation, our MBAs gain strong foundational business skills here – but even more, they learn to be comfortable with ambiguity, to embrace accountability, and to be adaptable in a wide range of contexts. They are taught to identify and capitalize on opportunities, and are committed to using both their entrepreneurial mindset and their business skills to benefit themselves, their organizations, their communities, and, ultimately, the world at large.

A unified MBA program

Recently, Babson significantly revamped its highly ranked MBA program in response to a rapidly changing world that needs entrepreneurial leaders with vision, ability, and compassion. The new, unified MBA curriculum offers a wide range of programmatic elements that prepare students for the jobs of tomorrow and an increasingly globalized economy. With the new Babson MBA curriculum, our graduates will emerge ready to lead and committed to making a difference in organizations of all types and sizes.

Babson's unified MBA program and curriculum is delivered in two full-time (one-year and two-year) and two part-time options (evening and a blended onsite/online "Fast Track" program). Regardless of which option you choose, you will take the same courses with the same stellar faculty, ensuring a transformative, hands-on MBA experience from which you will emerge an entrepreneurial leader with a global mindset.

A local school where you can go far

Babson's beautiful, tree-lined main campus is located in Wellesley, with satellite facilities in the "Innovation District" along the picturesque South Boston waterfront. In our living/learning laboratory, we offer dozens of student clubs, numerous academic and research centers, and easy access to all the arts, culture – and employment opportunities – that Boston is known for.

As beautiful as our campuses are, however, they really act as a launch pad for our graduates who find that a Babson MBA opens doors to exciting careers. According to Kathy McGettrick, vice president of market insights at IBM, "Babson students are well-equipped to take their deep insights and practical knowledge and turn them into successful strategies for our company."

It's your move

Even as you read these words, the world continues to change. If you want to have a hand in changing it for the better, you need to take action. At Babson, we prepare entrepreneurs of all kinds to make a difference. Are you one of them? If so, contact Babson MBA Admissions by phone at 781-239-5591 or via email at mbaadmission@babson.edu. Find us online at www.babson.edu/mba and follow us on Twitter: @BabsonMBA.

Top travel destinations for 2012

About the list

Metro asked Robert Reid, U.S. travel editor for the Lonely Planet guide books, on the five hottest locales for 2012. These are his picks.

GETTY IMAGES

Burma (Myanmar)

A travel boycott to this Southeast Asia country ended over a year ago. It's a fascinating, friendly place, yet still gets only a trickle of the visitors as its neighbor, Thailand. One of the best main attractions is Bagan — a plain filled of hundreds of centuries-old pagodas along the Ayeyarwady River. You can reach them by bike or horse cart on dirt trails — search out hidden stairways to reach upper-level platforms with unreal views.

Coastal Wales

All eyes will be on London in 2012 — with summer Olympics set for summer — but Wales' coast is quietly turning into a prime-time attraction of itself. It's beautiful. A new All Coastal Wales Path is set to be finished, a 1,000-mile trail system along the craggy shoreline, where you can find fishing towns to stay in or manors or castles rented out by the National Trust. Zero in on Pembrokeshire in the south, with Barrafundle Bay and St. David's being particular standouts.

Ruta Maya

So, it's a bit of a tongue-in-cheek concern that doomsday may come as the Mayan long-count calendar ends this Dec. 21, but that makes for a good case for diving deeper into the still thriving Mayan culture in southern Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras and Belize. But a warning: You will be hooked the more you know. An easy way to experience it is by planning on a few days in Merida, Mexico — a real Spanish colonial city a few hours in from the Cancun beach.

Orlando, Fla.

Orlando is trying to break the 50 million mark of visitors this year. Most, nearly all, go for the amusement parks — but I challenge visitors to give the city a day. On its leafy streets you'll wish you had a home on, you can walk to lakes and parks. Loch Haven Park is a complex of museums on lovely grounds, including the Mennello Museum of Art. The emerging Milk District is a bohemian spot with bookstores, bars and restaurants serving vegan pizza and beer collections.

COMSTOCK

Culebra, Puerto Rico

You don't have to have a passport to go to Puerto Rico, and it's home to one of the world's greatest beaches — a complete secret, even, to many of the people who visit the island. The world-class beach Playa Flamenco is on the tiny, offbeat, laid-back island of Culebra, 17 miles off Puerto Rico's mainland. Reached by ferry or flight, it's great for snorkeling or hikes in a wildlife refuge. Beachside apartments go for $150 a night. LONELY PLANET

▶ Josh McDaniels gave Tim Tebow a chance in the NFL. He'll be back on the Pats' sidelines Saturday night.

Tebow's teacher

Josh McDaniels returns to Pats just in time to play mind games with Tebow, Broncos ◐ Former Denver coach drafted the pigskin preacher

Everyone assumed it would be Patriots-Steelers. But it's not the first time Tim Tebow proved us all wrong.

Tebow and the Broncos upset the Steelers and are heading to Foxboro for a Saturday night showdown at Gillette Stadium. And that's probably fine with the Patriots.

The Pats beat the Broncos 41-23 on Dec. 18 in Denver, shutting up the Tebow-holics for the time being. Now, the Pats have a couple key defensive players back (safety Patrick Chung and linebacker Brandon Spikes). Oh, and Denver's head coach from last season.

Bonus baby

Tim Tebow's upset victory over the Steelers on Sunday paid off in more ways than one:

$250,000 was the extra amount of cash the Broncos quarterback received due to an escalator in his contract for each playoff victory.

Josh McDaniels, the former Broncos head coach (2009-10) as well as former Patriots offensive coordinator (2006-08), has officially joined the team as an offensive assistant for the remainder of the postseason, with the idea that he will take over for current offensive coordinator, Bill O'Brien, at season's end when O'Brien leaves for Penn State.

"He's a very experienced coach in the league; a good coach that we have a lot of background with," Bill Belichick said. "I think he can help us in a lot of different ways … I think he's an asset because of his knowledge, his work ethic and his familiarity with what we're doing. Right now it's just a one game season, so whatever we can do to help ourselves this week we'll do and then we'll worry about next week and next year later."

So McDaniels will show up with Denver's playbook, right? Well, not exactly. The John Fox-coached Broncos are a new team, but it can't hurt to bring on a guy who's familiar with certain players and tendencies — on both teams.

"I've enjoyed our conversations the past couple days as we've gotten caught up on some things and moved forward into the playoffs here," Belichick said. "I think that he'll be a good asset to our team for the remainder of the season."

Caserio explains decision

Nick Caserio isn't headed to the dark side and he explained why in a conference call yesterday.

"I have a great job in New England, I work with a great staff, privileged to work for the head coach that I do," Caserio said when pressed about the reported interest the Indianapolis Colts had in hiring the Patriots current director of player personnel. "Today is no different than it was any other day. I enjoy being here and right now the focus is getting ready for the Denver Broncos. That's where we're at."

There's been plenty of comings and goings in the NFL the past few days.

Following offensive coordinator Bill O'Brien's departure to Penn State during the weekend and Josh McDaniels return to New England, the Patriots former defensive coordinator Romeo Crennel was officially named head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs yesterday.

Crennel went 2-1 as the interim head coach of the Chiefs and beat previously unbeaten Green Bay. METRO

B's, Vancouver talking smack

Marchand docked five games by NHL for hit on Salo ◗ War of words between two teams escalates after weekend's knockdown affair

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Bruins forward Brad Marchand, right, was hit with a five-game suspension by the NHL yesterday for his hit on Sami Salo.

The NHL didn't buy Brad Marchand's "duck" defense Monday. That meant Marchand could not duck a five-game suspension.

After a conference call with the Bruins forward Monday, NHL disciplinarian Brendan Shanahan concluded that Marchand's upending clip of defenseman Sami Salo during the Bruins 4-3 loss to the Canucks on Saturday was not a defensive or evasive move.

That, coupled with Salo's resulting head injury — and that Marchand was a repeat offender — led to the sentence of five games, starting tonight when the Bruins face Winnipeg at TD Garden.

Shanahan's was the final say after a volley of warring words between the Bruins and Canucks. Canucks coach Alain Vigneault fired the first shot, all but placing a bounty on Marchand's head after Bruins coach Claude Julien offered the "duck" defense after Saturday's game.

"That's a stupid comment," Vigneault said. "Marchand … someday he's going to get it. Someday, somebody's going to say enough is enough and they're going to hurt the kid, because he plays to hurt players."

NHL Rule No. 44 was the violation which got B's forward Brad Marchand suspended five games. It specifically cites 'clipping' violations.

Julien and Bruins general manager Peter Chiarelli responded forcefully Monday.

"Sometimes you got to look in your backyard," Julien said. "We all know he's got the same type of players on his team. It's hypocritical and we're stupid and we're idiots and they're the smartest team in the league. I guess we need to listen to all the gab they have to say."

Said Chiarelli: "[Marchand's] no dirtier than maybe two or three of their players. We generally try to take the high road when it comes to this stuff, but we have to respond. I'm friends with Mike [Gillis, Canucks GM] and I'm friends with Alain, but I don't like the way that it's come out. That's a real inappropriate comment. It's an unprofessional comment."

The Bruins are playing every other night over the course of the next week, jamming in a bunch of games prior to the NHL All-Star Game on Jan. 29 in Ottawa.

Winnipeg enters tonight's game (7 p.m., NESN) as the ninth-best team in the Eastern Conference and has 45 points on the season.
